Programme Details

The Doctorate in Education (EdD) is an innovative, five-year part-time degree providing a cohort experience with supervision from a personal adviser. It delivers a programme of research-based opportunities for experienced professional practitioners who have educational responsibilities— in schools, colleges, higher education institutions, or in health, public service or other educational organisations.

Participants are required to undertake critical reflection; to challenge existing theory, knowledge and professional practice; and to develop capability in defining, undertaking and evaluating professional practice and policy.

Programme Delivery

Intensive face-to-face sessions at the MIE run by both MIE and UoB staff, and on-line with the University of Brighton.

Briefing session at the MIE

In order to help prospective doctoral students wishing to enroll on the EdD programme, the MIE is organising a briefing session on Wednesday 18 July 2018 at 2.30 p.m. in the Conference Room, Level 3, MIE Tower, Réduit. The session will be run by the EdD Course Leader from the University of Brighton, Dr Mark Price.

Further details about the course can be found on the University of Brighton website on <https://www.brighton.ac.uk/research-and-enterprise/postgraduate-research-degrees/applying/edd-important-for-your-application.aspx> .
